

Opting out of DRIP

A Dividend Reinvestment Plan, or DRIP, refers to the practice of automatically reinvesting all distributions back into the underlying fund from which they were paid. Titan follows industry practice of opting into DRIP for our clients by default. This means that distributions go towards additional shares of the same interval fund and get added to your total investment balance in the respective strategy.

Long-term investors generally look to reinvest any distributions received so that their capital continues to compound over a long time horizon.

If you'd like to opt out of automatic re-investments and instead receive distributions to your Titan Cash balance, please complete and submit the form below:
